

I believe ownership rules have been relaxed too much already, to the detriment of the public interest. Too much has been made of the role of cable and internet sources. Broadcasting is still the lowest common denominator, and needs to be considered largely on its own, for the benefit of those who get most or all of their information and entertainment from the public airways.

Do not relax the ownership rules any further!